

Common FAQs About Graduate and Professional Schools

- I have been working for a number of years and am now thinking about professional school for a career change. What do I need to consider?
- I have heard mixed views about the value of a graduate/advanced degree. What do you think?
- I wrote a personal statement for professional school and I have a CV as well. Can you critique them?
- I graduated several years ago and lost touch with my professors. How can I get letters of recommendation?
- I'm looking for a graduate school program where I can graduate without any debt. Do you have any suggestions?
- I want to become one of the top scientists and researchers in my field. Which PhD program should I attend?
- I want to become a physician, but my GPA is not high enough for medical school. What can I do?
- I know medical school is very competitive. What is an acceptable number of schools to which I should apply and how do I select which ones are appropriate for me?
- I applied to medical school and now they invited me to a Multiple Mini Interview (MMI). How do I prepare for that?
- I looked into physician assistant programs, but they said I needed two years of clinical experience. How can I get it?
- I want to become a lawyer but I'm not a good standardized test taker. How can I get into law school?
- I already have a good job with a top company. Do I need an MBA to advance in my career? Which schools would you recommend?

Let a WayFinders Careers coach help you answer these questions and achieve success!